RUFFIANS REBUKED

In boxing the compass las week, America has shifted her course temporarily off a straight, neutral path by reason of two incidents: our govermnet's formal condemnation of Japan as a treaty violator, and President Roosevelt's address attacking "ruffian" war-makers and treaty breakers. Whether it was wise for this country to brand Japan an aggressor and thus lend our moral support to the League of Nation's condemnation of Japan has now become an almost irrelevant question for two reasons. First, of course, is that our country has already gone ahead and done so, and the second is that we had already pledged ourselves—and in fact, taken the initiative— under the Coolidge and Hoover administrations to guarantee China's sovereignty. For better or for worse, America could scarcely slap treaty violators verbally, while ignoring pledges we had not only signed, but initiated.

Milking At Both Ends

A fortnight ago it loomed as a strong possibility. Last week, treasury department figures showed that it had come true—federal income for the first quarter of the fiscal year 1937-38 soared to the highest peak in history! Undeniably this indicates that what we loosely call buisness is prospering to a substantial degree. It would, in fact be almost encouraging save for the fact that although government income is soaring, outgo continues unabated. During the same quarter, expenditures also reached a new high of $1,924,514,000, exceeding income by $300,000,000! Like milking a cow at both ends, it's contradictory and shows no more gain than if you used government funds for launching consumers' cooperatives—to compete with merchants and shopkeepers whose tax payments make government income possible! There's only one feasible remedy—cut spending. Make outgo less than income!

Schools Take A New Trend

Although fall enrollments in many of California's elementary and high schools have shown increases, in other communities there has been a sharp drop which has caused unnecessary alarm. However, it is the schools which have shown a reduction in the number of enrolled students that are in line with a major trend throughout the country. Shrinking enrollment is due neither to a lack of truant officers or the high cost of having children, according to authoritative actuaries. The Place the cause entirely on the stopping of immigration. Several years ago when the widespread ban went into effect, they estimated the probable results of this action upon school enrollment and population. Their predictions have proved surprisingly exact. This year's steep enrollment drop in New York City schools from kindergarten to the 8th grade, amounting to 17,000 less than last year, is an indication of the normal trend throughout America.

Dodging The Nutcracker

While William Green and John L. Lewis flung jibes at each other the other day on the occasion of the A. F. of L.'s annual convention, a Los Angeles manufacturer calmly extricated himself from what might have been an unhappy fate—serving as the nutshell for the A. F. of L.-C. I. O. nutcracker. With his factory jammed by labor trouble, he asked the strikers if they'd like to run his knitting mill. Three of the employees said they would. Forming a $25,000 corporation, the three ex-strikers made themselves president, vice president and secretary-treasurer, and the ex-manufacturer accepted the job as sales agent for the mill that once was his. All's well for the present! But wait till the three ex-strikers begin knitting their brows over mounting operating costs, rising prices of goods, plump tax bills—and a strike of their fellow workers for more pay! There's a whose friction may set the sparks flying.

Pundita Circle Meets With Mrs. George Burrow

Mrs. George Burrow entertained the Pundita Circle Wednesday afternoon at her home, assisted by Miss Helah Laird and Mrs. George W. Page. The rooms were lovely with autumn flowers and leaves.

Mrs. M. E. Mumma presided during the business meeting. The club voted to send $5.00 to the county student loan fund.

Miss Laird was chairman of the program committee for the afternoon, the subject being "India."

Miss Laird introduced her neice Mrs. Neville Lee of Berkeley who gave a cery charming and instructive talk on India. Mrs. Lee read extracts from letters written by a college friend, Mrs. Scudders, who is living in India. Mrs. Scudders visited Honolulu, China and Japan on her way to India. She spoke of the manners and customs of the people of India, how they are so strongly governed by caste. The language is very difficult to learn. Those present were unanimous in declaring it a most delightful afternoon.

The next meeting of the cirlce will be the annual guest day, Oct. 27, at the home of Mrs. D. H. Cramer.

Reports Read At Kiwanis Meeting

The eight Kiwanians who attended the 17th annual convention of the California-Nevada district at Sacramento reported at the Tuesday meeting, each taking a different part of the meetings.

Santa Monica was selected for the 1938 convention.

Between 1200 and 1500 members were in attendance from the two states and Yuma, Ariz., which is also in the district.

Music was decidedly stressed at this gathering, a number of notable music directors and chairmen being present. C. P. Klassen was honored by being asked to direct the singing at one of the banquets.

Cyril Collett, new member of the grammar school faculty, was inducted into membership.

Next Tuesday evening the club will caravan to Capitola for a fish dinner, and a good time as guests of Herold Morton at his cottage.

Mission To Be Given At St Lucys

A mission will be given at St. Lucys church beginning Oct. 24 and ending Oct. 31. Masses for the week will be at 7:30 a. m. and sermons and devotions will be at 7:30 p. m.

Many people consider going to church a duty. For the most of them it is a pleasurable duty. We do not know how you feel about it anyway you are urged to give your self a chance. And do remember non-Catholics are most welcome. Everyone is urged to ask questions. Signed or not, relevant questions will be answered by the missionary. A box for the question will be conviently located in the vestibule of the church. Many interesting features will mark these services. There will also be special music.

Too many swimming pools may account for a sinking treasury—in part at least.

Keeping Fit—With Mice!

America received a startling bird's-eye view the other day of how our ancestors frequently used to nurse themselves back to health. Only sturdy souls, vitally concerned with keeping healthy, could have taken, or survived, the treatments on display at a Middle West clinical conference. Witness these remedies! To Cure goiter, stroke a dead man's hand across a patients' neck. Whooping cough? Try a dish of fried mice. Night sweats? A crock of water under the bed. A dog with rabies? Feed the hound some Christmas cake. Anemia? Apply a poultice of red watermelon. What a fight it must have been in those days to see which killed the patient first—the ailment or the remedy!

BOY! WHAT A LINE TO BUCK!

Oct. 25 Set As Date For Chest Drive

The Campbell Community Council has set Oct. 25 as the initial date for the campaign for solicitation of funds for the community chest, the working time to be ten days.

Dr. W. I. Merrill is manager for this season and is mapping the district and arranging for solicitors.

One of the chief beneficiaries of the chest is the Library association which helps finance the local library. Serving a wide territory our library is used by a great number of readers, old and young. It fills a real need in the district which is included in the chest. Many people who are unable to visit neighboring towns to attend moving pictures, find reading their chief source of entertainment.

In order to maintain our attractive and comfortable library, the Library Association is allotted $500, if the total budget is raised. Otherwise that amount must be cut down in proportion with the other organizations sharing in the chest funds.

Neighboring communities are busily engaged in chest campaigns and all interested in the welfare of this district urge that every one make as generous a contribution as possible. Don't refuse to contribute because the gift must be small.

Gridders In Tie With Mt. View

By Don Martin

Stanford's upset of U. C. L. A. or Oregon State's victory over the University of Washington were no greater shocks to grid fans than Campbell high's scoreless tie with Mt. View. The "Eagles" were heavily favored because of their decisive 65 to 6 trouncing of the locals last year. However, the Mt. View eleven had a different team to contend with here Friday. Coach Steve Casaleggio's gridders went out on the field self-confident but not too cock-sure of themselves. In defense, they were in and at them just as soon as the ball was snapped.

During the first half of the exciting game the visitors provided the offense and the play was deep in Campbell territory. In the second half, the locals carried the fight to Mt. View's side of the field but throughout the entire course neither teams came within twenty yards of scoring.

Although the contest ended 0 to 0, the Orchard City gridders made more yards, completed more passes, and made longer punts than the "Eagles." It is too early to pick a Santa Clara valley league champion but after the showing against the highly-touted Mt. View team, many are keeping an eye on Campbell.

Next on the schedule is a game with Fremont high there, Friday, Oct. 15. Fremont considers this their big game and are out after the local's hide but if Campbell gridders get their plays clicking and get a reasonable number of lucky breaks, they should win by at least one touchdown.

The Women's Service Club will meet [illegible]t Wednesday with Mrs. Lloyd [illegible]ood. The business session s[illegible]g at 2 o'c[illegible], as[illegible]ing hostes[illegible] Mrs. Ray Fish a[illegible]iss Eunice [illegible]eder. Mrs. F. A. Jacobson was appointed chairman for a series of noontime dances to be supervised by an instructor and sponsored by the P. T. A. which will enable all students to participate in this activity, at a nominal fee.

A group of piano solos by James Rambo was greatly enjoyed by all present, as was a talk by Principal Lloyd K. Wood on extra-curricular activities, and the new high school building, which will be in the course of construction shortly. Mr. Wood introduced the teachers who were the honored guests of the afternoon. The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Milton Robertson, hospitality chairman, assisted by the executive board.

The next meeting will be held on November 10 with El Paradiso Council members as guests.

Local Hoopsters Divide Pair With Mountain View

By Don Martin

Friday was an all-around tie day for Campbell high and Mt. View. After the gridders battled the "Eagles" to a scoreless tie, the lightweight basketball teams divided a pair of the opening contests of the Santa Clara valley athletic legue on the local hardwood.

The visitors won the 110 game 9-7. In the first period, the "Eagles" ran up a 6 to 3 lead over Campbell. During the second period, the locals looked a great deal better than they had earlier in the game and came within two points of tieing the score when the final bell sounded.

Coach Ralph Noddin's 120's dominated the situation throughout the entire game which they won 14 to 10. Charles Silcot, forward, and Captain Paul Borg led the scoring, tallying five points each.

Friday evening the lightweights will travel to Live Oak for the second county league contest. As yet no starting line-ups have been announced.

JAPAN THE AGGRESSOR

Condemned by Roosevelt and The League, Tokio Is Defiant . . . England and France Prod Mussolini

America Backs Up League

DENOUNCING Japan as the aggressor in the conflict in China and accusing Tokyo of violating both the nine-power treaty and the Kellogg-Briand pact, the United States government lined up with the League of Nations.

Secretary of State Hull issued a statement to this effect, asserting that Japan's action in China was inconsistent with the principles that should govern the relationships between nations and was contrary to the provisions of the two treaties. It was indicated that the United States would participate in a conference of the powers signatory to the nine-power pact, which was called for by the league.

Fifty member nations of the league voted for the resolution branding Japan as an invader and treaty violator and warning of more drastic action if Tokyo does not mend its ways. China was assured of the moral support of these powers, which agreed to take no action that would weaken China's power of resistance. Poland and Siam refrained from voting.

The Aga Khan, Indian prince who is president of the league assembly, sent messages to the signers of the nine-power treaty and to Germany and Russia, asking them to convene immediately.

These events followed closely upon President Roosevelt's startling address at the dedication of a boulevard bridge in Chicago, which turned out to be perhaps the most important speech he ever has made. Reiterating his determination to keep America out of war, he said: "The peace, the freedom, and the security of 90 per cent of the population of the world is being jeopardized by the remaining 10 per cent who are threatening a breakdown of all international order and law."

He continued: "The peace-loving nations must make a concerted effort in opposition to those violations of treaties and those ignorings of humane instincts which today are creating a state of international anarchy from which there is no escape through mere isolation or neutrality. . . . We are determined to keep out of war, yet we cannot insure ourselves against the disastrous effects of war and the dangers of involvement."

Japan Still Defiant

IN THE face of these warnings and threats Japan was defiant. An emergency meeting of the cabinet was called, and spokesmen for the foreign office and the navy declared Tokyo's present "pacification" policy in China would be continued.

"We cannot stay our hands out of respect for a world opinion formed on the basis of dispatches rewritten by Chinese government officials," said a high naval official.

Great Britain's cabinet, studying President Roosevelt's speech, was anxious to learn just how far the United States would go in support of action taken against aggressor nations. The British statesmen remembered how they themselves left Secretary Stimson out on a limb when he tried to stop Japan's seizure of Manchuria; and they suspect that the American people are dead set against being drawn again into foreign intrigues and quarrels.

Germany and Italy both felt that Mr. Roosevelt's remarks were directed against them as well as Japan, and were rather resentful and skeptical. The Nazis recalled President Wilson's failure to pacify the world, and Mussolini's newspaper declared "We fully understand and justify Japanese efforts at expansion." France and loyalist Spain warmly approved Mr. Roosevelt's speech and Mr. Hull's announcement.

Chinese Check Invaders

REPORTS from neutral observers indicated that the stubborn resistance of the Chinese had brought the Japanese advance to a virtual standstill both in the Shanghai area and on the northern front. Where the Chinese troops have withdrawn they have occupied new and strong systems of defenses. The progress of the Japanese in North China has been rapid but is now slowed up, and the Chinese are ready to meet them on the Yellow river.

Japan's plan to set up an autonomous republic comprising the five northern provinces is revealed in the Tokyo press. The capital is to be Peiping under its old name of Peking.

Britain Prods Italy

GREAT BRITAIN was determined that Italy should decide promptly whether it would meet with her and France to discuss the withdrawal of volunteers from the civil war in Spain. Mussolini was so informed after Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Minister Eden had conferred with Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London. The Anglo-French attitude was stiffened by President Roosevelt's address and the league action in the case of Japan, and England felt freer to concentrate on the Spanish question. There were hints of "decisive action" unless Mussolini responded satisfactorily.

Special Session Likely

CONGRESS probably will be called into special session between November 8 and November 16. This was revealed by President Roosevelt just after his return to his Hyde Park home. He indicated that the law makers would be asked to legislate for crop control, wage and hour standards, governmental reorganization, and the creation of eight regional boards to plan a program for national resources.

Mr. Roosevelt also made it clear he has not abandoned his plans to "reform" the federal courts, including the Supreme court.

As for agricultural legislation, it appears the administration will favor compulsory production control for wheat, corn, cotton, rice and tobacco. This was inferred from a speech in which Secretary of Agriculture Wallace expounded his ever normal granary scheme to New Yorkers. The plan, he said, which would "give the maximum income to farmers at the least cost to the federal treasury, is one which involves high loan values and frequent use of compulsory control."

Black Joined Klan; Quit

"I DID join the Ku Klux Klan. I later resigned. I never rejoined."

Thus Hugo L. Black, now Associate Justice Black of the Supreme court, admitted to an immense radio audience that the charges against him were true.

Hugo Black

Black asserted that since he quit the Klan he has had nothing whatever to do with it.

He cited his record in the senate and in private life to back up his assertion that he was entirely free from religious or race prejudices. While he apparently repudiated the principles of the Klan, he did not explain why, on receiving a life pass card after his election to the senate, he said to a gathering of Klansmen:

"I realize that I was elected by men who believe in the principles that I have sought to advocate and which are the principles of this organization."

Black emphatically declared his devotion to the principles of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

"When this statement is ended," he concluded, "my discussion of the question is closed."

There was a definite note of defiance in Black's address, but it is fair to assume that the American public was not satisfied with his explanation. From all parts of the country came renewed protests against his presence on the Supreme court bench, and various large associations "resoluted" about it. Many of the senators who voted to confirm his appointment because they accepted the assertion of his friends that he was not a Kluxer are resentful at the deception practiced on them—but what can they do about it now?

When Justice Black took his seat, the chamber of the Supreme court was crowded to capacity. Albert Levitt, an attorney, was on hand to ask permission to file a suit seeking to force Justice Black to show cause why he should not be declared constitutionally ineligible to sit. The court deferred action on the request. Another motion to the same effect was filed by Patrick H. Kelly, a Boston lawyer.

Favor for Anarchists

MERCER G. JOHNSTON, of the Rural Electrification administration, led a delegation that appeared before Secretary of Labor Perkins and received her promise to consider a petition to cancel the deportation warrant of two anarchists, Domenick Sallito and Vincent Ferrero of Oakland, Calif. Madame Perkins already has held up the deportation of more than 3,000 alien criminals and radicals on the ground that separation from their families would work undue hardships.

Blow to the C.I.O.

ENTRY of the C. I. O. into industry in the province of Ontario, Canada, was decidedly negatived when the voters returned to power the administration of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, increasing its already decisive majority in the legislature. Hepburn, head of the Liberals, is determined to keep Lewis' organization and its organizers out of the province if he can do so legally. The defeated Conservatives, led by W. Earl Rowe, stood for free and open labor affiliation.

Rail Strike Averted

THERE will not be a nationwide strike of railway workers. Such a disaster was averted when the five operating railroad brotherhoods accepted an offer of the companies of a flat raise of 44 cents a day. They and the fifteen "non-operating" unions had demanded a 20 per cent wage increase. The latter already had agreed to a raise of 40 cents a day.

For five weeks Dr. William M. Leiserson, member of the national mediation board, had been holding daily conferences with representatives of both sides.

In announcing the terms of the agreement, Leiserson praised the co-operation of both parties, saying the manner in which they receded from their original positions was the biggest factor in the settlement.

H. A. Enochs of Philadelphia, chairman of the carriers' conference committee, estimated the increase would mean an average raise of 6.6 per cent for the 75,000 workers.

A. F. of L. May Expel C.I.O.

WHEN President William Green opened the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in Denver, he was not able to present an optimistic picture of the future of unified labor. The battle with John L. Lewis and his C. I. O. continues unabated, and there are "dogfights" among the unions all over the country, generally concerning jurisdiction disputes or shifting of affiliation.

William Green

If the report of the federation's executive council is adopted, the C. I. O. unions will be finally ousted. The council said in part:

"For two years we have pursued a policy of toleration . . . All of this has failed . . . Now the executive council feels that the time has arrived when the American Federation of Labor must meet the issue in a clear-cut and positive way . . . The issue which created the division in the ranks of labor must be made clear.

"In order to accomplish this purpose the executive council recommended that the convention confer upon the executive council authority and power to revoke the charters of the international unions holding membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization."

Windsor Coming to U. S.

HIS honeymoon being ended, the duke of Windsor intends to take up the really serious things of life, and before long he will come to the United States for the purpose of studying housing and working conditions in this country. This was announced in Paris by the duke's secretary, who said Edward and his duchess would first go to Germany for a similar survey there.

The duke's interest in such matters is no new development, for as Prince of Wales and during his brief reign as king-emperor Edward was notably concerned with the social welfare of his subjects. On many occasions he assailed housing conditions of British workers.

In London it was said the government had given reluctant permission for the duke's American trip in order to avoid an open rupture with him. He resented the close restrictions placed on his movements and, it was rumored, had threatened to return to England.

American friends of the Windsors think they may make their temporary home at "Wakefield manor," near Front Royal, Va., possibly arriving there in November. The manor is the estate of Mrs. George Barnett, cousin of the duchess.

Ed Howe Dies

WITH the passing of Ed Howe of Atchison, Kan., the country loses one of its best-known and best-liked philosophical commentators on current events. He was eighty-four years old and died as he had wished, in his sleep after a day's work. The "Sage of Potato Hill" founded the Atchison Globe in 1887 and retired 37 years later. Thereafter he busied himself with the publication of "Howe's Monthly," which he called a "Journal of Indignation and Education."

Appreciation

TO BE able to appreciate the best that there is in life is an ideal that every youth should have. There are all sorts of things in life, some of them good, some of them bad, and some neither very good nor very bad. There are hosts of young people who miss the best things, because they have fixed their attentions on lesser things. So the finest things in life they never see. The youth who has learned to look for the best in music, in art, in literature, in his associates and in himself, will get the most out of life.

"Not very much. Aren't you going to help me find some breakfast?"

"You bet I am." They went into the cook shack, and he lighted the lamp again.

Moving slowly, he quietly shoved wood into the banked fire, and got bacon into a skillet. "I'm sure sorry I can't stay while this cooks," he said. "But I've got to make a ride."

"Maybe I'll go with you."

"I'm afraid," he said gently, "you wouldn't want to do that."

"You mean you don't want me."

"It isn't that. But—"

"If you had any imagination you'd know I got up at this unearthly hour because I want to talk to you."

He waited, disturbed. She stood close to him, talking almost in whispers. He knew he must get going, but he could not bring himself to move away.

"You see—I heard part of what you and Uncle John said last night."

"You heard—what?"

"Uncle John has a voice like old Rock in full cry," she explained. "My room isn't next to his, but it isn't far away. And when he's angry, I'll bet he can be heard ten miles back into the Tuscaroras. I couldn't help hearing what you said about Bob Flagg being dead. And if that's true—"

Wheeler was startled. "Marian—" he looked at her square—"what else did you hear?"

Her eyes did not waver. "That was all."

He thought he detected a faint wicked gleam in her eyes, but he kept his face expressionless, and stood pat.

"We've got to find Old Man Coffee," she said.

"You've got to take me to him," the girl said. "You can find him—I know you can find him."

"What makes you think so?"

"Can't you?"

Wheeler hesitated; what Old Man Coffee had told him had been told in confidence. Yet, invariably, he found it almost impossible to speak untruly to this girl.

His hesitation was fatal. "You know where he is," she said suddenly.

He picked up his bridle. "I've got to get out of here."

"Billy—you're riding out to meet Old Man Coffee!"

"Tell your uncle I'll be back tonight," he said abruptly, and moved toward the door.

"I'm going with you."

"I'm sorry," he said, "but you're not. You're a pest, that's what you are! Go on and eat your breakfast."

Yet he knew that he could not bluff this girl, nor control anything that she did; and what was worse, she knew it too. As he left her she was writing a note to her uncle, telling him where she had gone; and she was with him, mounted on her own pony, as he left the layout.

Wheeler pressed his pony along steadily, eyes to the front; and he was combating his keen awareness that the girl was at his side. He had loved this gaunt, clear-colored country of blasting sun and sharp shadows; differently than he had loved the girl, but as a man loves his home. But now he knew he would need another different country, a new type of grazing land, if he was ever going to forget this girl who rode beside him, whom he could never possess.

They were almost in the shadow of Lost Whiskey Butte when she broke the silence between them.

"Billy—I told you something that wasn't so."

He waited.

"It was when we were talking about Bob Flagg, and how I heard what you and Uncle John said about that. And I said that was all I heard. Well—that wasn't all."

"What else did you hear?"

"I heard—it all."

Unexpectedly he found it difficult to tell himself that it didn't matter. But now he realized that she was waiting for him to answer, and he managed to say, "That's all right."

"Isn't it better," she said, "that we both know now how things really stand—between us, I mean?"

He made himself say, "I guess so Marian."

"It is better," she said, and he wondered why her voice seemed so sad. "Because—don't you see?—there's nothing to keep us from being friends now—really friends. And each of us—all of us—are going to need what friendliness there is left in the world, I think."

CHAPTER X

As Coffee, with his dogs about him, rode out to meet Wheeler and Marian Dunn from Lost Whiskey Butte, the girl pushed her horse ahead. She stopped close to the old man, facing him squarely.

"He tried to keep me from coming," she told Coffee, "but there wasn't anything he could really do. Now, if you want me to go back, I will."

Old Man Coffee grinned. He moved his mule nearer Marian's pony, and leaned forward to peer into her eyes. Then he laid a bony old hand on her shoulder. "Child, what happened to you?"

"Nothing."

"Something did, though," Wheeler contradicted. He told Coffee of the shot from the brush.

The old hunter scowled; he looked as nearly startled as they had ever seen him look. "This changes the whole set-up," he complained. "I thought I had it licked. I thought I could pretty near give names and cases. But—this smears it."

"I don't follow that," Marian said.

"Neither do I," Coffee said, dismissing discussion. He turned to Wheeler. "You told her what we aimed to try?"

"No."

"Well, you should have. This is a kind of a sad, dark job we're on today, girl. We're going to try to find the—the man that was killed at Short Crick."

"I guessed that," Marian said.

Old Man Coffee led off to the northeast, his sleepy-eared mule in an ambling shuffle, and they rode in silence for a little way. Coffee signaled to them to come abreast.

"Maybe you've wondered some," he said, "why I've been kind of prowling around of nights, as your wagon boss was at pains to make known. Well, I guess it won't hurt nothing to tell how a thing like this is done. Did you ever listen to coyote voices, of a night, Marian?"

"Marian, This Is as Far as You Go."

"I couldn't very well help it, could I?"

"There's a funny thing about them. More things interest coyotes than you'd expect. And if something kind of strange and interesting happens on the range, all of 'em know it, all over the desert. We'd learn queer things from 'em if we could understand their talk a little better.

"Coyotes won't touch a dead man; neither will a loafer wolf. But they'll circle around, and kind of wail, and sing. Once before this I found out where a corpse was hid by listening to the coyote voices at night."

"This time, we got a break. There's a loafer wolf on the range. He'll only talk about certain things, and maybe speak only two, three times a week. So when he lets out the same kind of queer cry, in the same place three or four nights in a row, a man begins to wonder."

That was a long day, and a strange day—the strangest in Marian Dunn's life. Their work carried them a great distance, much of which was wasted in quartering, and the long following of false trails. Some queer geometry of landmarks was working in Coffee's head, but what it was like they could not guess, and he did not explain. Repeatedly Old Man Coffee pulled the dogs off invisible trails which he declared were those of coyotes. It was after noon before a new note came into the howling of the hounds, signaling the trail of the loafer wolf.

"This loafer trail," said Old Man Coffee, "is three days old. I don't reckon it'll serve."

It did not serve, though Coffee let it lead them seven miles in no particular direction before he pulled off the dogs.

The sun had gone down behind the Tuscaroras, and the long gray dusk was on the range as they came on to the broken wilderness of upthrust red rock that was known as the Red Sleep. The dogs were voicing uncertainty here, obviously running no trail, though Old Man Coffee seemed to know where he was going. And now old Rock made a curious play. The old dog had been in a sulk all day long, unwilling to quarter the trail of the loafer wolf; but now he sent up a long full-throated cry and drifted swiftly, nose down, a hundred yards along the red rock.

Old Man Coffee said under his breath, "I'll be eternally damned!" Abruptly the old dog turned to look at Old Man Coffee, let his tail drop again, and quit the trail.

"What's the matter?"

"Everything," Coffee said. "I never done so much false figuring in my life!" He pushed ahead quickly now, shouting to his hounds, jerking new life into them with gutteral Indian words that the others did not understand.

Now suddenly the big spotted leader hound sprang ahead, bawling; and in another moment the rest of the hounds were with him, running full cry, outdistancing the horses.

"The wolf again," said Coffee, a new keen edge on his voice. "Children, we're near the end of the trail!"

Yet because the trail of the wolf was indirect and circling, they spent another hour in following the dogs. The ponies were scrambling over broken rock now, keeping up as best they could. The dusk was very deep when Old Man Coffee pulled up at last and sat waiting.

They did not see what had stopped him at first; but after a few moments they saw that the hounds had made a circle and were coming back. Coffee got down off his mule, called in his dogs, and tied up each of them, separately, to rock or scrub oak. But he had to crack the long dog whip over them more than once before they would lie down, sulking and moaning in their throats. Old Rock, the only one untied, lay down under the feet of the mule, raised his nose to heaven, and let out a long deep-chested wail.

Old Man Coffee tightened his saddle. "Marian," he said, "this is as far as you go." "You stay with her, Billy. I don't know how long this will take."

He said something unintelligible to the dogs, and then moved away from them, the dainty feet of his mule picking its way, and old Rock slinking close behind.

They sat there for what seemed like an endless time. Billy Wheeler tried to talk to break the sad terrible stillness, but this place smothered the words in his throat.

The first stars were showing when Old Man Coffee came back to them at last, his black mule moving like a lean tall shadow among shadows. He came close to them, then for a moment sat silent, looking back over his shoulder the way he had come; and Wheeler knew that he was futilely seeking words for what he had to say.

Long before the old man spoke they knew he had found what he had sought.

"It's Bob Flagg," Old Man Coffee said.

Horse Dunn accepted the news that Flagg was dead more quietly, more steadily, than Wheeler had expected.

"How was he killed?" Dunn asked.

"By a shotgun; the same as Cayuse Cayetano."

"Where's Coffee?"

Coffee, Wheeler had found, could not be persuaded to return with them to the 94. It was Coffee's belief that Dunn had made a serious mistake when he had chosen to hold Magoon's saddle instead of turning it in to the sheriff.

"The sheriff will be out here in the morning, sure," Wheeler said. "I think Walt Amos means to be fair. But there's better than a hundred men in Inspiration, all out of outfits that hate the 94. Amos is sitting on a stove, and it's getting hotter every minute."

"Let him come."

"Any more dope on the Cayetano killing?"

"I sent Gil Baker to Ace Springs. But he hasn't come back."

"Val Douglas went to Pahranagat, did he?"

"He left this morning. I suppose it'll be late tomorrow night before he gets back—maybe longer. Steve and Tulare and me, we spent the day prospecting around in the Tuscarora foothills, here."

"And didn't find anything," Wheeler supposed.

"Billy," said Horse Dunn, "there's somebody been slinking around over there. We found the ashes of two different fires. And I'm not a damn bit sure there isn't somebody prowling around there yet."

"Now who the devil would that be?"

"That's just it—we don't know who that would be. I guess—it doesn't matter, now."

They had expected Sheriff Walt Amos to appear in the course of the night, or at least no later than the first light; but it was noon before Amos appeared. He again came alone, as he had come after Billy Wheeler.

At the 94 he found only Horse Dunn and Billy Wheeler, for Steve Hurley and Tulare Callahan were in the Tuscaroras in search of the unknown prowler now believed to be hiding there; Val Douglas and Gil Baker had not yet returned; and Marian was out with her pony. Walt Amos climbed out of his car and walked slowly to the gallery of the cook shack, where the 94 people happened to be. They awaited him in silence.

"Horse," said Walt Amos, "the time has come when I can't put off acting no more."

"What have you done with Gil Baker?" Horse Dunn demanded.

"He's in Inspiration. We had to take him in."

"Is he hurt?"

"Not bad. He came prowling around Ace Springs, where Cayetano was killed, and one of the deputies hollered to him to halt, but he made a run for it. They had to throw down on him before he'd give himself up. Turned out he was shot in the leg."

"You're getting almighty high-handed around here, Amos!"

"Sorry. But I reckon it's going to seem still a little more so. Dunn, I got to take you in."

"On what charge?"

"Held for questioning; concerning murder."

Horse Dunn stood up, his thumbs hooked in his belt, and his eyes rolled slowly over the foothills of the Tuscaroras; it seemed to Wheeler that he was looking for a sign.

Now Dunn answered him at last, and Wheeler saw that somehow, in the course of the night, the old man had been able to prepare himself for this thing. "When you want to move out?" he asked.

"I'd like to get on back as soon as you're ready, Dunn."

And now out of a trail that wound through the tall buckbrush back of the layout a rider came. His horse was at a quiet running walk, but the animal shone wet with sweat, and from under the edges of the saddle blanket the lather rolled. It was Tulare Callahan.

He rode directly to the cook shack gallery and swung down.

"Horse, I've seen Lon Magoon!" he announced.

"Tulare, are you sure?"

"We only sighted him far off on a high ridge, at better'n a mile. But Horse, I knew him as sure as I know my name. His horse looked like that good sorrel of ours, we call Brandy. We signed him to come and talk, but he sloped. We took out after him hell for leather—Steve Hurley's trying to trail him yet—but he got loose about four miles up the Tamale Vine. I knew you was looking for the sheriff; and I thought you might want to know this, if you was still here."

"Amos," said Horse Dunn, "I'm going to have to ask for a little more time."

Coconut Palm of Hawaii Yields Food, as Well as Drink, Buttons, Ornaments

Hawaii has a native skyscraper that stands as an excellent example of a self-sufficient economy, notes a writer in the Chicago Daily News.

It contains most of the elements—including food, drink, clothing and scenery—that minister to man's physical and aesthetic well-being. The name of the skyscraper is cocos nucifera. Translated from the scientific this means a coconut palm.

While most of the complexities of modern civilization operate in connection with Hawaii's up-to-date and progressive commercial life, the graceful coconut palm still stands as an interesting contrast to modernity.

In many cases, where tall palms line the walks next to the modern buildings of Honolulu's business district, the two types of skyscrapers stand side by side.

The milk and the meat of the inner nut provide food as well as drink. Hats and other articles of clothing can be fashioned from the tree's leaves. These fronds can also be woven into thatches for shelters. The outer husk of the coconut and oils derived from it can be used as fuel; and the earliest Hawaiian candle was made by stringing kukui nuts on the rib of a coco frond.

After it has surrendered its beverage and meat, the coconut shell can be highly polished and utilized for making dishes, bowls and other receptacles. Today buttons and small ornaments are carved from this material.

Rope woven from coconut fiber found many uses in the olden days, when island fishermen made many of their nets and lines in this manner.

As an important item of island scenery the graceful, swaying palm has become a regular trade-mark of Hawaii.

For every nimble-footed Hawaiian lad the section rings that circle the palms at regular intervals provide an automatic ladder-type elevator to the top "story" of these island skyscrapers.

Knit Those Patches.—Instead of darning large holes in men's or children's woolen underwear, knit a square large enough to cover the hole in stocking-stitch, using thin steel needles and fine wool, and sew it over the hole. It is neater than a darn and wears better.

Cleaning Brickwork.—Brickwork around the fireplace can be cleaned by scrubbing with any scouring powder with only enough water to form a thin paste. Follow by thorough rinsing.

Egg Savories.—Boil some eggs hard. Halve them and mix the yolks with grated cheese, anchovy paste, or sardines. Add a little butter and seasoning. Fill the halves with the mixture and place on rounds of toast or fried bread. Put a slice of tomato between the egg and the toast.

Onion Fritters.—Boil 4 large onions until they will mash easily. Cook 2 ounces of rice, drain off the water, and allow to cool. Add 3 ounces of breadcrumbs, 1 teaspoonful sage, salt and pepper to taste, and 2 well-beaten eggs to the onions and rice. Divide into several portions, coat with egg and breadcrumbs, and cook in boiling fat until a light brown.

For That Nutty Flavor.—Try dropping a teaspoonful of peanut butter into each muffin pan before pouring in the batter. This gives the muffins a delicious nutty flavor.

To Freshen Salt Meat.—Put it into cold water, quickly bring to a boil, then let simmer.

Storing Linens.—In storing linens for a long period, it is better to roll them, as the material may be weakened by continued creasing.

Bananas as a Garnish.—Bananas make an attractive garnish when they are fluted. Peel bananas, score lengthwise with a fork, then slice crosswise.

TAXES ARE FICKLE

Women—wise men both ancient and modern have said—is fickle. Yet compare her with the decptiveness of a large body of our State and Federal taxes, and she becomes forthright and direct as Job.

John T. Flynn, a noted economist, estimated recently that 70 per cent of our taxes are hidden. Even the family car is heavily upholstered with taxes which, however, never show up on the price bill. There are manufacturer's excise taxes of 2 per cent for parts and accessories, a 3 per cent tax on the chassis, and another 2 per cent per pound on the tires. In addition, there's a 3 per cent tax for the electrical energy used in putting the car together on the assembly line!

California's wage-earners, shopkeepers, housewives, and businessmen, turned in over $157 million in 1935 on these internal revenue taxes. A hidden tax of slightly different variety but just as devastating to pocketbooks, is the store tax, deceptive as a magician's silk hat. One has brought distress to Georgia where a court has ruled independent merchants must pay a chain store tax if two or more dealers buy goods co-operatively as many of them do.

The late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme Court vigorously expressed his mind on this tax business when he said, "Whatever form taxes take in their imposition, they must be borne by the consumer; that is, mainly by the working men of the community. It is well that ehtyshouldhave this fact brought home to them, and not too much disguised by the form in which taxes are imposed."

With steep taxes assailing nearly everyone's pocketbook, we'll trust California's voters to spot, and turn down, any new tax proposals to boost living costs still higher!

WANTED—TRAFFIC HEROES!

Buckled fenders, splintered windshields, and crumpled skulls strike the dirge-like chords of America's onward march to a greater and more appalling total of automobile fatalities than las year. During this year's first eight months, 24,500 persons fell before everyone's enemy—driving carelessness. Since this was 11 per cent greater than the number killed in last year's corresponding period, we many as well face this added bit of muhic from traffic's funeral march—before New Year's dawn of 1938, some 16,000 more persons will meet death on the nation's roadways!

Yet this does not mean safety campaigns are in vain. Match that 11 per cent increase in fatalities against a 14 per cent increase in automobile travel, and evidence of some improvement does glimmer through. But of what comfort is it to the stunned driver who has snuffed out someone's life, or to the victim's grief-stricken family, that the deaths-per-mile ratio is really lower this year than uast?

America has had its share of traffic victims. Let us have more traffic heroes—people with alert and constant devotion to the cause of safety!

BUSINESS FORECAST?

A completely new method of appraising business trends has come into view recently. Over in Utah more than 125,000 Mormons, members of the Latter Day Saints, united in an entire day of fasting because they feared a stiff business depression was in the offing a few years hence—more serious, they said, than the one we are now finishing.

However, many big industries are still worried about the lag in making the recovery which the Mormons expect to precede the decline, and the huge paper credit structure of the late 1920's is nowhere in sight. No, although the Mormons' deep-grained skepticism may serve as an antiseptic to ostrich-in-the-sand optimism, they appear to be overly gloomy. Though business is moving toward that state of well being known as prosperity, it is treading slowly, not swept along by a mad, inflationary gallop. Nevertheless, the Mormons have given the country a new source from which to expect business forecasts!

WE GO TO WAR

The spitting of machine guns in Shanghai's Chapei sector, the solemn wordage of League of Nation's communiques, may have to get along with scant attention from America for the next few weeks. We have weighty problems of our own. There was that stiff tussle, for instance, between the Yankees and the Giants—a struggle that had its heroes. its vanquished. its hair-raising climaxes. In countles stadiums hundreds of thousands of citizens will witness grim combats between armies of powerful, alert young men arrayed for a full 60 minutes of fierce battle. Gridirons, less deadly than the war-wracked terrains of China, are no less the scenes of stirring encounters, sudden retreats, climativ assaults against the enemy' line to natch breath-aking victories against overwhelming odds.

Yes, America has stirring wars of its own to attend to!

SCRAMBLED TRANSPORTATION

No sooner had the kinks been removed from the inter-union fracas on San Francisco's waterfront than the whole Pacific Coast got sharply jolted. Because intercoastal ships receive no subsidies, because Panama Canal tolls are costly, one large steamship firm last week unexpectedly announced a decision to pull all its luxury liners off the West Coast run. Another large company is considering the same drastic step.

Instead, their liners will ply between New York and South America where there are subsidies and no tolls, while smaller vessels take their place on intercoastal runs—ato a predicted loss to the West Coast commerce. The producer of goods, the consumer, the West Coast as a whole will receive a fair and equitable deal only when a uniform transportation policy is adopted to make such an equitable deal possible..

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

If you step off the elevator at one of the top floors of a sky-scraper office building some day soon to hear chicken cackling and roosters crowing with hand trucks loaded with crates of newly-laid eggs being strundled about and bookkeeping machines recording the day's production, try to keep calm. It may not be that nervous break-down you've feared after all. It may be true!

The latest contribution to synthetic agriculture—synthetic, at least, as "a dirt farmer" would view it—is the chicken factory.

Capping the climax, thus far, in this business of turning the hen into a city bird, without the benefits of rural life or even a place to scratch, 35,000 good layers are now working a 13-hour day in a six story metropolitan loft building in an eastern city, according to the September issue of Forbes' Magazine. And tens of thousands of other hens, both broilers and layers, have become mere "units of production" in other chicken factories, it is disclosed by Phillip H. Smith, in his article entitled. "The Factory System Takes Hold of the Hen!"

California poultrymen, who have earned an enviable reputation as efficient producers, are not expected to make sudden shifts from the farm to city office buildings as a result of the new development, but the innovation is said to be attracting numerous business men with a longing for agricultural pursuits, but who like to do their farming in a city atmosphere.

Creator of the factory poultry system is Milton H. Arndt, an Illinois farm boy who made good in the city—after ups and downs and many years of experimental work—and whose main business now is building cages for office-building chicken factories started by his disciples. On less than an acre of ground, near Trenton, New Jersey, Arndt houses his factory —for manufacturing the equipment for other factories—and 16,000 hens. Nearby, however, he has a 90-acre farm where he breeds pedigreed chicks, specially suited for cage work.

In the Arndt-type chicken factory, row after row of cages, each cage the permanent home of a hen, line up like filing cabinets in a modern business office. Each hen is a unit of production. She is fed a definite amount of raw material from which she produces a known unit output. On each cage there is a card, recording her production. And when she falls below par, she's headed for fricassee.

Factory chicken production had been tried before and had failed, Arndt recounts, due to the fact that each hen had to have a promenade to get her quota of sunshine. He overcame this problem by putting cod-liver oil in the mash. Day-old chicks begin their life in starting batteries—cages holding about 100; later, they are transferred to growing batteries—larger cages with fewer birds; then they progress to developing batteries where the cockerels are made ready for market and pullets are built up to lay. Finally, each hen enters a laying battery.

Each hen must produce a minimum of 108 eggs per year to pay her overhead in the poultry factory ,according to Arndt. To Escape fricassee, she must produce from 52 to 117 more eggs each year for "profit." Heating and ventilating make all seasons the same; electric lighting is used so the hens can work 13 hours a day. Feed costs are carefully tabulated; a hen can eat all she wants, but patented devices prevent waste. Usually, it requires 18 pounds of feed to get to laying age; six pounds per month to keep her producing. The cages have rubber-latex-coated wire to make for comfortable footing—are entirely devoid of soil to keep them disease free; eggs roll forward, ready for collection, when laid; droppings are carried away on belts. And one workman can care for 3000 hens in full production!

Radio programs are used to increase the hens' satisfaction with life in a cage—organ music preferred—and Arndt is now tryinog to breed new type chicks free of combs, wattles, tail-feathers and wings, as he says they are unnecessary appendages for the streamlined, factory hen. Chief advantage of the chicken factory, according to Arndt, is its appeal to retired business men—and its nearness to market. Sometimes there are grocery stores and restaurants in the same building housing the chicken factory!

Last year, Arndt, the factory chicken man, grossed more than $1,000,000, according to Forbes' Magazine and there are now chicken factories in 46 countries. Petaluma, however, seems undisturbed. Like bathtub farming—the chemical gardens fashioned in the test tubes of science—chicken factories still have a long way to go before they will rival the industrious California poultrymen.

Santa Clara Walnut Growers Assn.

Located At 1777 Lafayette, Santa Clara Are Growers, Processers And Shippers Of The Famous Diamond Walnuts Which Meet With Such Ready Demand Everywhere—Shipping From Santa Clara To All Parts Of The United States And Bringing Trade Activity And Money Here To The Santa Clara Valley From Afar.

The Santa Clara Walnut Grower's Assn. are an important factor in the development and progress of the Santa Clara Valley as they are a great aid in the marketing and shipping of walnuts.

Their location here is a great convenience to many growers as they can sell their walnuts to them, get a good price, and not have to bother about shipping them to some distant center.

Their service is in accord with our modern age of transportation and exchange and were it not for a service of this kind many of the walnuts might never find their way to the market. It is necessary to have an association of this kind as every grower cannot keep in touch with the buyers of the United States and sell their products direct. Were one to do this all the profit would be taken up in the exchange The Santa Clara Walnut Growers Assn., however, keep in touch with all the markets and buyers are ready to take the walnuts at the ruling price of the day.

In making this review we are pleased to call the attention of our readers to the great service that the Santa Clara Walnut Growers Assn. are rendering the people, and would say that they are a stabilizing influence in our Santa Clara Valley prosperity.

If, as most psychologists and educators now believe, the early years are the most important in shaping the life patterns of the child, how very important it is that these years should be passed in the right environment and under trained guidance. Such is the aim of this school. It is under the joint leadership of Mrs. Mabel Morris and Mrs. Winifred Ronas. The very fine music department is under the direction of Mrs. Leroy Brant.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Minding Your Business.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—A society is forming in England for the defense of the former Edward VIII, now the duke of Windsor and honorary citizen of all places in this country named for the Simpson family.

This society does not hope to restore the duke to the throne. That would not only annoy the archbishop of Canterbury, he already having things to annoy him, such as Americans, but would seriously upset Mr. Stanley Baldwin, who upsets so easily that it seems strange the British never have thought of calling him Reversible Stan. Besides, the throne would be quite crowded if the duke tried to snuggle in there along with the present occupants.

Irvin S. Cobb

What some of us over here think—and that goes for many Canadians, too—is that England has a crying need for a society dedicated to the broad general principle of minding its own business and suffering the duke and his wife to mind theirs. We have a rough idea that both of them can better endure long-distance snubs than officious meddling in their private affairs. Just being an ex-king is a hard enough job—even if you can get it to do.

Political Afterthoughts.

MASTER ROLLO, aged seven, and city raised, was visiting relatives in the country. On his first morning he came in wearing a worried cast of countenance.

"Mother," he said, "I've been out under the mulberry trees."

"Yes."

"Mother, do mulberries have hard backs and six legs and crawl around on the ground?"

"Why, certainly not."

"Then, Mother," said Rollo in stricken tones, "I feel I have made a dreadful mistake."

What's the point? Oh nothing, only I got to imagining what the brooding regrets of some members of the administration and a majority of the members of the senate must be when they recall the alacrity with which they moved to fill a certain recent vacancy in a certain very high court—in fact, the highest one we've got.

Hirsute Virility.

PARISIAN boulevardiers believe a dense arboreal effect of whiskers is proof that the wearer is indeed a man, without, in all cases, being absolutely convincing about it.

We haven't gone that far yet, but I would like to know whence comes this notion of appraising masculine vigor by the amount of hair along the breast-bone? Morbid, I calls it.

Two distinguished authors battle when one intimates the other is scantily adorned in that regard, forgetting that, in the immature summer peltage of his kind, an author has but a scanty growth as compared with the richer winter coat. And then prying reporters ask the new glamor prince of the movies whether he has any fleece at all upon his chest, their tone indicating they rather expected to find trailing arbutus there, or at least some shy anemone.

Years ago in the hospital, when I was being shorn for an operation, I remember remarking to myself that here was the only barber who'd ever worked on me without trying to sell me a bottle of hair tonic.

Miss America—1937.

AT LAST some rational excuse—in moral values, anyhow—has been found for a so-called nation's beauty contest.

The seventeen-year-old New Jersey girl chosen as "Miss America of 1937" is not going into vaudeville, is not going to make any personal appearances, is not coming to Hollywood for a screen test, is not going to accept a radio contract, is not even going to write her life story for publication. She will return to school and to the normal home life of a well-raised normal girl—that is, unless she changes her mind about it all.

If she shouldn't change her mind, she stands out as probably the sanest young person of her age at present residing on this continent, or, should we say, this planet.

If she should change her mind—well, the American populace has been fooled many a time and oft before. Our grandfathers didn't believe human beings ever could fly. Our fathers didn't believe anybody would ever lick John L. Sullivan. Only the other day our United States senators didn't believe their fellow-statesman, Mr. Black of Alabama, could be a Klansman. They thought that low but persistent sound of "Ku-Klux, Ku-Klux" was but the voice of a modest hen.

FARM TOPICS

CAUTION IS URGED IN BUYING CATTLE

Five Important Points Are Cited by Expert.

By R. C. Ashby, Associate Chief, Live Stock Marketing, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

With a big corn crop, with fat steers hitting new highs and with the trade talking even higher prices, caution at five different points in buying feeders may pay large dividends this fall.

First consideration is a declining cattle market a few months hence. In six or eight months fed steers may be selling for little more a pound than they cost as feeders. Therefore in laying in his cattle, the feeder should decide about when he expects to market and what he expects fat cattle to sell for at that time.

The second point of caution is that plainer feeders may show better margins, if marketed from January to June, than quality cattle will show. Pork supply will continue short and lower grade beef is used to fill in. In buying plainer feeders, sorting is important to know and to get the "good-doing" kind.

Successful feeders do not get excited and buy feeders at high prices just because others are doing it. This year it may pay to wait until the main rush is over before buying.

The fourth point is to get the best possible advice and assistance in buying feeders. There is every indication that plenty of feeder cattle will be bought too high this fall. It is a year when good advice may save the feeder a lot of money.

Usually the best investment a farmer makes is the reasonable commission which an honest and skilled feeder buyer charges to assist in buying feeder cattle. Such assistance will be particularly valuable this year.

Finally, there is the importance of getting good weights. Two factors should be kept in mind—to see that the cattle do not have an excessive fill and to insist that they be weighed on scales that have been proved accurate.

Teach Chicks to Roost, Is Advice of an Expert

Teach chicks to roost while they are young. By so doing there is far less chance of them huddling up in a corner of the brooder house and smothering, suggests H. L. Wilcke, head of the poultry husbandry, Iowa State college.

Provide easily accessible roosts before the brooder stove is removed. Roosts that slope gradually upward have been found best. The first roost pole should be about six inches from the floor. The roost poles need to be close enough together so that a chick may hop from one to another. A two by two inch roost pose is satisfactory. Dropping boards beneath them will make cleaning easier.

Spraying or painting the roosts and other parts of the brooder house with a mixture of one part cresol to five parts crankcase oil or with kerosene will hold mites in check. Lice may be controlled by Black Leaf 40, spread in a thin ribbon layer along the center of the roosts.

Mash for Poultry Flock

There is little to be gained by feeding moist mash continuously, according to a North Carolina State college authority, but it has an important place in the feeding schedule of most flocks at some time during the year. It should be used with early hatched pullets to prevent a partial or complete molt; with late hatched pullets to hasten production in the fall; with laying hens to keep up production until October, and with breeding hens to hasten production in January. Three pounds of the regular laying mash moistened with hot water or milk for each 100 birds will give excellent results. This should be fed about two o'clock in the afternoon.

Secret of success: Making hay with the grass that grows under other people's feet.

"What does a 'better half' mean?" asks a reader. Usually just what she says.

Some people have tact. Others try to tell the truth.

Hundreds of thousands of towels and large quantities of soap are stolen from railroad companies every year. Quite a lot of people must have noticed that cleanliness stands higher than honesty in the list of virtues.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—It may be, as I have frequently been told, that the average person—Mr. John Q. Public—has very little interest in the doings of the federal reserve system. It may be true that the average citizen accepts the federal reserve banks as a thing apart and of little or no concern to him because they are so far removed and, further, because they indulge in what the demagogues used to call "high finance."

Federal Reserve

Whether my information is correct and regardless of the public concept of the federal reserve system, I am devoting some space this week to a discussion of certain developments in the federal reserve banking structure in an attempt to show the trend of money conditions in this country at the moment.

Lately, the federal reserve board of governors announced a revision of its regulations governing discounts and advances by federal reserve banks. Now, it may be said that these regulations affect only the banks that are members of the reserve system. That is true but it is not the whole truth because everything that the federal reserve board of governors and the federal reserve banks do affects you and me and everyone else whether we are little fellows and, therefore, unimportant individually, or whether we are trustees of great sums of money such as is the case with corporation presidents.

The board of governors, in the revision of its regulations, has made it possible—if not obligatory—for the reserve banks to take almost any kind of paper that is an evidence of debt. That is, the reserve banks are now empowered to receive from the member banks that paper upon which you and I borrow, any paper that shows that a citizen owes the bank money, and to give that bank money in exchange for the evidence of that debt.

Everyone, of course, is familiar with a note or a mortgage on a piece of real estate. Most people understand about installment paper which is simply a note providing for payment of the amount due over a period of months. But there are many other kinds of evidence of debt that is in frequent use among business men from the smallest storekeeper in a rural village to the greatest banker in the world. Under the regulations now operative in the federal reserve system there seems to be almost no paper which the local banker cannot send to the federal reserve bank and receive cash in exchange. Of course, that obligation must be paid off some time and the arrangement simply permits the federal reserve banks to carry the debt until its maturity.

All of this obviously sounds as though the federal reserve system is at last to be helpful to us little fellows. That is true. It is going to be helpful in increasing the number of us little fellows who get ourselves in debt. It is going to do that because it makes getting into debt easier.

I think no one should object to the reserve board regulations in all details. There must be credit given where credit is needed; that is to say when you prohibit borrowing money you choke off eighty-five per cent of all of the business done in the United States. Yet, credit is dangerous, a double-edged sword and must be handled with extreme caution by the borrowers as well as by the lenders. As we have seen from the inglorious debacle of 1929, there can be too much credit extended, and when I say that, I refer not only to loans by banks but the sale of goods, wares and merchandise that enter into everyday life. And, going a bit further on that line, there can be too much credit extended by the manufacturer and jobber to retail merchandising establishments just as easily as there can be too much credit extended by the retail merchants to you or to me. One can get into debt over his head just as easily by purchasing at retail or wholesale as by buying more land than we can afford to own or a home larger than we need.

So, a discussion of what the board of governors of the federal reserve system has done can lead in this instance only to a conclusion that danger flags are waving.

I do not want to exaggerate present conditions or signs as I see them. This is no time to become excited. There are, however, boundaries beyond which we cannot go in the matter of credit without facing another tailspin of the type of 1929. That is the thing I fear may result from an accumulation of federal policies of which the late action by the federal reserve board is only one.

Don't Get Excited

It is perfectly human and natural for each one of us to aspire to better things, to have more of this world's goods for our enjoyment and to equip ourselves by way of greater resources for the future. We will do those things sometimes when we ought not to do them simply because the instruments are available and we do not stop to count the ultimate cost. To the extent, then, that the federal reserve board probably has made borrowing easier it has tempted a certain percentage of citizens, or will tempt them in the future.

The condition of easier debt that is now presented is, as I have said, only one of many temptations and inducements for getting into debt that has been offered by the Roosevelt policies. It is unnecessary to recount here how many pieces of legislation, how many executive and administrative rules have been made to permit citizens to use money that is not their own. They are almost numberless. The result has been, is, and will continue to be the creation of a lot of debt that will hang over us all for years to come.

The federal government itself has taken the lead in getting into debt. The latest Treasury statement shows that the United States government owes more than thirty-seven billion dollars. That amounts to $281.63 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Compare that with the national debt as of 1932 when it stood at $19,500,000,000 or a debt of $155.93 for every living person in the United States.

I do not know when, if ever, this gigantic national debt will be paid off. I think probably the American people with traditional tenacity will stick by the job and get it done some time, but I must refer to the job as a very slow process. It required twelve years after the World war debt reached its peak of twenty-six billion to reduce it by ten millions. That reduction was more rapid than had ever been known before in any nation and it was made possible because of the prosperity which we enjoyed during those twelve years.

Pay Off Sometime

It would seem, therefore, that we must consider not only a slowing down of individual debt making, but a sharp curtailment of national debt making as well. If we do not, a yawning cavern of unsounded depths awaits us.

Some weeks ago Mr. Roosevelt sent instructions to the various agencies of the government to save ten per cent out of the operations for the current fiscal year to help in balancing the budget. There were no ifs, nor ands, nor buts about President Roosevelt's instructions. The spending agencies were told simply to lay aside that ten per cent which, in the aggregate, would amount to around four hundred million dollars. The President said during a speech at the great Columbia river dam the other day that he hoped to balance the budget in the next fiscal year. Most other people hope that the President's hope is realized because Mr. Roosevelt has stated several times that the budget will be balanced "next year" and some of us are beginning to wonder whether his budget balancing statements are not like the statements which President Hoover made at the beginning of the depression. He said, you will remember, a number of times that "prosperity is just around the corner," a corner that still seems to be next year.

But Mr. Roosevelt must be commended and criticized at the same time for his budget balancing ideas. Mind you, no criticism can possibly be attached to the objective—a balanced budget. But commendation must give way to criticism on some of the things that are happening under the flat order for a reduction in spending.

Budget Balancing

Take this case for example: The National Park service, like other agencies, laid away ten per cent of its operations. This impounding of money happened to coincide with the greatest flock of visitors ever to enter the gates of the country's national playgrounds. It costs money to police and protect the parks; it requires funds to provide for the comfort of the throngs of visitors to national parks. The result, in the case of several parks, was that they were forced to close their gates to visitors from a week to a month earlier than they usually do in the fall. Their money had run out.

Well, say you, what harm does that do? Simply this: Visitors to national parks, such as Yellowstone, for example, pay much more for entrance fees and the things they must buy while in the parks than it costs the government to maintain the parks.

But that is the crux in this situation. The National Park service does not keep the money that is paid in by park visitors. Those funds are turned directly into the treasury as general revenue. The books of the National Park service, therefore, show only outgo.

The condition is one, therefore, it seems to me, that almost warrants a statement that the policy is "penny wise and pound foolish."

News of the Week

Recount Reveals 17th Birth

Vallejo.—Mrs. Tony Nunes, 40, a resident of Benicia who gave birth to a daughter last week, revealed that she had miscounted the number of her children. She said her last was the seventeenth instead of the sixteenth as she previously announced. Fourteen of the children are living.

Theft of House Charged to Man

Nevada City (Nevada Co.)—J. T. (Buck) Ryan, 68, of You Bet, was arrested on the charge of stealing the home of Joseph Ferris, also of the You Bet district. While Ferris was absent from his cabin, Ryan is reported to have dismantled the place and trucked it to his own home in the You Bet section.

Alfalfa Urged for Humans

Los Angeles.—For good health, eat plenty of alfalfa. It's high in vitamic value and contains more inorganic salts that possibly any other vegetable. Authority for these statements is Dr. Victor G. Heisler, president of the International Leprosy Association, who arrived here last week from a trip to South Africa.

Wet, Severe Winter Predicted

University of Santa Clara.—A wet and severe winter was forecast by Dr. Albert J. Newlin, head of the Ricard Memorial Observatory, following a study of newly appeared sunspots. Four pronounced groups of spots on widely scattered portions of the sun's surface were studied by Dr. Newlin, who is one of the chief exponents of the sunspot weather theory advanced by the late Father J. S. Ricard, S. J.

Bankers Leaves $750,000 to Charity

San Francisco.—A $750,000 charity fund will be established from cash and property left by the late William H. Crocker, San Francisco pioneer banker. Daniel Murphy, an executor of the Crocker estate, said the total assets of Crocker's private estate amounted to $1,000,000. He had given the bulk of his estate to his wife and children over a period of several years before his death.

L. A. Antelope Nearly Extinct

Los Angeles.—Antelope in Los Angeles County will soon be extinct, according to a report compiled by Spence D. Turner, chief county game warden. For a number of years, according to the report, the one-time large herd of antelope has been growing smaller and smaller and last year only three of the animals were reported by the department's field division men, as against four for the previous year. Other forms of wild life are flourishing largely because of protective laws. Pheasants, pigeons, gray squirrels and doves are on the increase, according to the report.

Loan Commissioner Named

Sacramento.—Justus F. Craemer, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, Orange County publisher and assistant State director of public works, has been appointed by Governor Merriam as the new State building and loan commissioner. Craemer succeeds Louis C. Drapeau, who resigned to accept appointment from the Governor as superior judge of Ventura County.

Forest Visitors Set Record

San Francisco.—A total of 4,217,000 individual visits to the 18 national forests in California were recorded for the fiscal year ending June 30. This is an all-time high, 400,000 over the previous record of 1933, Federal Forester for California, S. B. Show said. Tahoe National Forest was the most popular spot in Northern California with a total of 359,000. The four national forests in Southern California accounted for 2,500,000. Most of the people, nearly 2,000,000, who came to the forests, just came to picnic.

Reform Schools to Deport 100

Los Angeles.—Deportation of 100 transient juvenile offenders by November 1 to relieve crowded State institutions was decided by authorities after a meeting with Juvenile Judge Robert H. Scott. Three other steps to be taken are: 1—The expansion of facilities at the Whittier State school and the release of a yet undetermined number of inmates. 2—The construction of a new building at the Preston industrial school to replace one recently burned. 3—The addition of new quarters at the State schools and hospital at Sonoma and Pacific Colony, caring for feeble minded and degenerate juveniles.

New Can Factory for Stockton

Stockton.—The first earth in the construction of a new Continental Can Company factory was turned here on a 15-acre tract just beyond the city limits. The plant is being built here because of Stockton's strategic location in the center of a great fruit and vegetable producing region, officials said. The factory unit will also contain warehouse, administration quarters and will be served by a newly constructed railway siding.

A True Sentiment

That is a true sentiment which makes us feel that we do not love our country less, but more, because we have laid up in our minds the knowledge of other lands and other institutions, and other races, and have enkindled afresh within us the instinct of a common humanity, and of the universal beneficence of the Creator. —Dean Stanley.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

A varied diet often does not supply enough of the vitamins, contrary to popular belief. That is why everyone should know about the richest vitamin food we have, —fresh yeast.

The familiar yeast cake carries four vitamins, A, B, G and D. The three cakes a day which are recommended for good health supply one-third of the daily requirement of vitamins A, B and G, and all of the requirement of vitamin D. Most meals supply the rest of the requirements for the first three, so that with the daily eating of these yeast cakes, the human body can easily obtain its quota of those four vitamins necessary for good health.

Irradiated yeast cakes are the richest known source of vitamins B and G, and contain the proper amount of the sunshine vitamin D, which the human system requires. Vitamin A has recently been added to the yeast cakes during the process of production, in the form of carotene. Vitamin A is the anti-infective vitamin; vitamin B is the nerve vitamin and is laxative in action; vitamin D, the bone vitamin, is necessary for good teeth and the prevention of rickets, and vitamin G is the growth vitamin, necessary for strong, healthy bodies.

What is yeast? It is a plant. In every one of those familiar yeast cakes there are as many living plants as 70 times the population of the whole world! That means about 140 billions! A yeast manufacturer is really a scientific farmer, as yeast is grown in carefully regulated tanks, under the most exacting scientific conditions as to cleanliness, food, fresh air and temperature. Laboratory tests keep the yeast crop at a high standard day after day.

Yeast is the oldest health food known to medical science. It was prescribed by physicians along the Nile 5,000 years ago. Hippocrates, the "father of medicine," used it. Its present-day use is therefore nothing new, but a continuation of the recognition given it thousands of years ago, with the added benefit of better quality yeast and with the knowledge of why it promotes good health.

WHEN you have those awful cramps; when your nerves are all on edge—don't take it out on the man you love.

Your husband can't possibly know how you feel for the simple reason that he is a man.

A three-quarter wife may be no wife at all if she nags her husband seven days out of every month.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."
